1. Between 4 and 5 p.m. on 2 January 1953, there was no air activity at Wiener Neustadt airfield. On 6 January, the field was occupied by 38 MiG-15s, 10 IL-28s, and 6 single-engine aircraft with an antenna rod on the cabin roof. There was a 10/10 overcast and a visibility of about 2 km. It snowed after 3 p.m. There was no air activity.
2. At about 5 p.m., on 2 January, the former officers candidate school in Bad Fischau was guarded by sentries who wore black-bordered blue epaulets. Officers (OAS/X3A) and soldiers wearing black-bordered blue epaulets and driving school trucks [REDACTED] each occupied by 5 men were observed. The drivers and soldiers on the trucks also wore black-bordered blue epaulets.
3. On 2 January 1953, the radar station south of the road leading to Bad Fischau was unoccupied. A radar set had been observed there prior to October 1952. There were no indications of an expected reoccupation. On 6 January, it was observed for the first time that canvas covered AA guns were located in the AA gun emplacements near the three wooden buildings on the southern edge of the field. Near the emplacements there were eleven telegraph masts with telephone lines from the Artillerie Kaserne. [REDACTED] with a flash rider moved toward the emplacements.
